EBENSBURG, CAMBRIA CO., PA.

FRIDAY, - - FEBRUARY 16, 1894.

On Tuesday the president sent the following nominations to the senate: To be superintendent of the mint at Philadelphia, Eugene Townsend; to be collector of the port at Philadelphia, John R. Reade; to be naval official at Philadelphia, J. Marshal White; to be surveyor at Philadelphia. P. Gray Meek; St. Clair A. Mulholland, of Philadelphia, to be pension agent at Philadelphia; Major James Gillico, quartermaster; to be lieutenant general and deputy quartermaster general; Captain Charles R. Barnett, assistant quartermaster, to be major and quartermaster.

The United States steamer Kearsarge foundered on the night of February 2 off Roncador Reef. The Kearsarge was ordered on January 27 to proceed from San Domingo to Bluefield, Nicaragua, to protect the American interests that were alleged to be endangered by the troubles between Honduras and Nicaragua. Roncador Reef, on which the Kearsarge is supposed to have struck, is some 200 miles northeast from Bluefields. The Kearsarge was one of the historical vessels of the American navy. She was the vessel which on Sunday, June 19, 1864, fought and sunk the rebel privateer Alabama off Cherbourg, France.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." When the tariff barons found they had the power to impose higher taxes by the passage of the McKinley bill they were in their glory. They thought they had the senate for at least ten years to come and by that time they would have their pockets filled. But they were mistaken and the people overthrew them. They are now struggling against the passage of the Wilson bill, a measure that allows them far more protection than they should have. If the people fail to get tariff reform now, the next gale will be a cyclone that will wipe the theory that one class should be taxed for the benefit of another out of existence. Protection is on its last legs and if its beneficiaries are wise they will be thankful for whatever they can get.

The Wilson bill is severely denounced by protectionists, who call it a free trade measure and tell the people that its effect will be to bring disaster to the American manufacturer. Yet, as the New York World truthfully says: "This tariff is higher tariff than Henry Clay thought necessary for the protection of infant industries 50 years ago. It is higher than the Morrill tariff of 1862. It is nearly as high as the tariff of 1883. It is a less average reduction of a 50 per cent tariff than the Republican tariff commission of 1882 recommended in a 40 per cent tariff." These facts should not be forgotten by all. There was no talk of ruin under any of the above named tariffs. That of 1883 was generally satisfactory to the protectionist until he saw a chance of getting it raised a peg higher. It is well known that they made money under it, bnt now they fear the result of the small reduction that has been made.

Farmers have been required by the laws of the land, says the St. Lous Republic, to squeeze along with free trade prices for their products. The demand for their surplus has been diminished by restrictions on exchanges and by the habit the tariff trusts have acquired of running on short time and throwing labor out of employment.

By a splendid majority the House of representatives has spoken for the farmers and nonprotected masses of the country.

Before another harvest the law will be improved and the masses will get some of the benefits of tariff reform.

Manufacturers will begin to provide a better home market for agricultural products by exporting a surplus and employing more labor. It is trade which gives to any kind of labor its highest rate of earnings. Manufacturing labor will receive more after protection disappears entirely from the tax system.

The vote of Thursday in the House was a vote for the profits of American industry.

The true and real causes of the recent financial depression, and the consequent suspension of manufacturing industries and general business interests, should be carefully studied by the voter who desires to exercise the right of suffrage intelligently and with a view of doing what he can to correct the political evils, that have afflicted this country.

When President Cleveland, surrendered his office on March 4, 1889, there was a surplus in the United States Treasury of upwards of one hundred millions of dollars. The question which confronted the administration of President Harrison upon its advent to power, was, what shall be done with the surplus? Secretary Blaine and other prominent Republicans favored a distribution among the several states. But this device was abandoned and the Reed Congress of 1889-90 adopted the plan of increasing appropriations for public buildings and other expenditures not immediately necessary, under which contracts were entered into by the government, that require continuous appropriations of many millions of dollars in excess of the ordinary expenditures. This reckless extravagance has caused that body to bear the odious sobriquet of the Billion Dollar Congress. While the surplus left in the treasury by Mr. Cleveland's first administration was thus wiped out by the Reed Congress, to make assurance doubly sure that no surplus should again accumulate, the same body enacted what is known as the McKinley tariff law. While this act placed sugar on the free list, and gave the sugar producers a bounty that averages about ten millions of dollars per annum, thus depriving the government of on annual revenue of some seventy million of dollars, and adding ten millions to its annual liabilities, it imposed such enormous duties on other articles as to prevent importations in some instances and to induce undervaluations and smuggling, all of which operated to reduce the revenues to a point far below the actual necessities of the government. Meanwhile the absurd and mischievous "Sherman act" which required that the government should pay out $4,500,000 per month in the purchase of silver bullion, imposed a burden upon the government that it was scarcely able to bear during the last months of the Harrison administration. The consequence was, that the foreign holders of United States securities, cognizant of the fact that the revenues of our government were falling short many millions of dollars of its actual requirements, became alarmed and drew upon this country for gold by throwing their holdings of United States securities upon our market. The outflow of gold thus induced had the effect of producing a stringency in the money market, which was followed by a loss of confidence in banking institutions, which were in turn obliged to call in their loans or close their doors, and the end of it all was a stoppage of the wheels of industry and business.

Such was the condition which confronted the administration of Mr. Cleveland when it assumed the reins of power on March 4, 1893. The new President was obliged to call congress together in extra session in order to provide ways and means to avert the disaster which threatened the country. At Mr. Cleveland's suggestion Congress repealed the "Sherman act" and at once confidence in the banks was restored and many of those institutions which had suspended, resumed operations. Money again became abundant in the great financial centres and now awaits distribution throughout the country through the marketing of products of farm and mill and factory. The passage of the Wilson tariff bill by the House of Representatives has already given a great impetus to manufactures. Mills and factories that have been idle since last spring are now starting up and the number of the unemployed grows smaller day by day. When free raw materials for the manufacturers and cheaper necessaries of life for the workingmen shall have been assured by the passage of the Wilson tariff bill in the senate, an era of activity in production and trade will surely set in which will prove to be one of substantial and enduring prosperity.

The salient points to be remembered and reflected upon by the intelligent voter, therefore, are

1. President Cleveland left the Treasury with a surplus exceeding one hundred millions of dollars when he surrendered office on March 4, 1889.

2. Ex-President Harrison, owing to the hurtful legislation of the Reed congress of 1889-90, including the Sherman silver purchasing act and the McKinley tariff law, left the treasury bankrupt, with a deficiency in the revenues of nearly fifty millions of dollars, when he surrendered office on March 4, 1893.

When the government itself lacks the revenues necessary to meet its liabilities, it naturally follows that the creditor class among its subjects will lose confidence in the ability of the debtor class to meet its obligations. The Harrison administration brought the government to this pass and is responsible for the financial and industrial disasters that have supervened. The Democratic party, through President Cleveland and the present congress, has corrected the fatal blunder of the Sherman purchasing act and under the instruction of the people at the ballot box in 1892, is preparing the remedy for the stupid and mischevious revenue legislation embodied in the McKinley tariff law. Let the people of Pennsylvania, by supporting James Denton Hancock for representative at large in congress, at the election on Tuesday, February 20, testify their approval of the efforts of President Cleveland and the Democracy to restore financial soundness to the government and industrial prosperity to the country.

Of all the selfish and impudent protests against the Wilson bill, says the N. Y. World, that of the pottery trust is the most flagrant.

These manufacturers have not only made an average cut of 10 per cent in wages months before the bill can pass, but threaten an additional reduction of 20 per cent "in case the Wilson tariff law"—this by way of driving their workingmen to sign petitions and attend meetings against the reform measure.

Reducing wages in not a new thing with the Pottery trust. Its members secured in the McKinley bill an advance of the protection on their products equivalent to 5 per cent. A portion of the combine at Trenton within three months afterward made a reduction of 22 per cent in wages, which led to a long and costly strike. That there was no occasion for this any more than there is for the present outcry over a 38 per cent average duty is proved by the facts as to the trust published in the Philadelphia Press, an extreme McKinley organ. This report charged that the trust is "monopolistic in its tendency," and that "the effect of it is to limit the production and to maintain exhorbitant prices of sanitary pottery, an article of common necessity." That the trust profited by its monopoly is shown by facts published in the same connection, including an admission of prominent stockholders that the profits for 1891 were "almost one-third of the capital stock invested" and averaged 22½ to 29½ per cent. upon a favorable valuation

This is but a sample of the combinations which, after being accorded in the really high protection Wilson bill a duty more than covering the difference in labor cost between this country and foreign competion, fight the reduction as an invasion of vested rights! The reform was not ordered any too soon.

Washington Letter.

Washington D. C. Feb. 9th, 1894.—It is gratifying to note that the Democrats in congress have at last realized the benefit of united party action. No man in congress has a right to expect that every measure he is called on to support will be entirely in accord with his personal idea. If every member of congress should adopt that idea legislation of any sort would be impossible. Long years of power in Congress taught the Republicans the value of organization and unity, and the lesson will have to be learned by any party that hopes to accomplish important legislation. The Democrats in the House made a good start by passing the Wilson tariff bill and followed it up this week by the adoption of the McCreary Hawaiian resolution which condemns the acts of ex-Minister Stevens and endorses President Cleveland's policy. The Democrats in the senate are not entitled to graduate in unity, but they got together this week and passed the House bill for the repeal of the odious federal election laws. If they would get together on everything and stay together it would be greatly to their credit and to the advantage of the Democratic party.

Representative Bland's bill for the coinage of the seigniorage is now before the House, but as it has no order from the committee on rules behind it and the anti silver men are refusing to vote to make a quorum there is some doubt as to whether it will be able to maintain the right of way until disposed of. Countless misrepresentations have been made of the attitude of President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle towards this measure. Neither of them have publicly spoken one word either for or against the bill, although Secretary Carlisle did point out one particularly objectionable feature in the bill to Mr. Bland—that providing for the issue of silver certificates in advance of the coinage of the seigniorage—and Mr. Bland expressed his willingness to change the bill so as to make the certificates issuable on the coinage of the silver.

In deciding not to grant hearings on the tariff bill the senate committee on finance deeply offended a few gentlemen who had come to Washington to instruct the committee and air their views, but the Democrats on that committee in so voting were acting as they believe from the information they have received the entire country wished them to act. From north, south, east and west comes in chorus "whatever is to be done let it be done quickly," and the denial of further hearings on the tariff means the saving of several weeks time in the consideration of the bill in the senate. Senator Vorhees sized up the situation correctly when he said: "Prompt and speedy action on pending tariff legislation is required at this time by every patriotic and business consideration." This being a fact acknowled by business men who oppose as well as those who favor the Wilson tariff bill, the Republican senators will do well to consider the matter carefully before the attempt to carry out the obstructive programme which is now being prepared by their ablest parliamentarians in the senate. The capitalists of the country are only waiting a definite settlement of the tariff question to invest their money and inaugurate a period of prosperity for everybody, not for a comparatively few fortunate individuals, and woe be unto the Republican party if its representatives in the senate postpone that prosperity by factious opposition to a measure that they know they cannot in the end defeat.

The sub-committee of the senate committee on foreign relations has concluded its Hawaiian investigation, so far as the taking of testimony is concerned. The reports of the sub committee will shortly be submitted to the full committee for action thereon. Although there is some talk about three reports there is no real foundation for the belief that there will be more than two—a majority report signed by Democrats, and a minority report signed by Republicans. There is no reason to doubt which of these reports will be adopted, notwithstanding publications to the contrary in Republican and anti-administration papers.

President Cleveland must enjoy reading the contradictory fairy stories that are daily printed in the metropolitan papers concerning his alleged actions to secure the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Peckham to the Supreme court. What Mr. Cleveland is really doing in that connection can be authentically stated without any violation of confidence in one word—nothing. As the supreme court has adjourned for a month there is no special occasion for haste in disposing of the nomination.

Mr. Anslem J. McLauren, the new senator from Mississippi, is not widely known in Washington, but if he is as able a man as the Mississippians in congress say he is he will make a fit successor to Senator Walthall. Like "Private" John Allen, the popular congressman from the same state, he carried a musket in the late unpleasantness. M.

Business Improving.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Business is rapidly improving, viewed from the stand point of the clothing manufacturers of this city, who employ 50,000 wage-earners. The manufacturers shut down almost without exception, when the country began to feel panicky last summer. Some were closed only a few weeks, others did not manufacture for months. All now have more men at work than at any time since the financial stringency was felt. Stocks of cloth are very low. The mills cannot possibly supply the demand for many lines of cloth. It is said to be a fact that clothing manufacturers cannot get all the cloth they want simply because the mill owners did not make it.

The generally good feeling in the trade is well voiced by Hirt, Schaeffner & Marx, who say: "Business is improving steadily now. It will be a good thing to have the tariff settled soon, of course, but I think any effect the bill may have is already discounted. The bill won't affect us before Dec. 1, and trade cannot remain where it has been. We could sell more than we are selling now if we could get orders for cloth filled."

Murder in the First Degree.

Mifflintown, Feb. 12.—The jury in the Carpenter case reached a verdict this evening of guilty of murder in the first degree against James B. Carpenter. The prisoner was on trial for the murder of his father, James S. Carpenter, on December 10, 1893, in the borough of Port Royal, where the Carpenter family, consisting of father, mother and son, resided. The murdered man was blind and followed the business of a poultry and egg dealer. The son kept the books and assisted in the general business. The evidence submitted during the trial proved that the old man Carpenter was murdered in a shop or stable on the Carpenter premises, his head being battered, his throat cut from ear to ear and his body thrown into Tuscarora creek near Port Royal, where, after careful search, it was found Tuesday, December 12. The evidence against the prisoner was very conclusive.

Caught in a Crash.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 13.—An extensive cave-in occurred at the Gaylord mine of the Kingston Coal company at Plymouth this morning.

A large number of miners and laborers were at work under a section of the roof which has for some time past been considered very weak.

After a shot had been fired, and without any warning whatever, the roof, consisting of rock and coal, fell with a heavy crash. It is not known as yet whether any of the men were killed outright by the falling debris, but it is known that 13 of them are hemmed in one of the gangways.

The air supply is now shut off, and the chance of living for any length of time is very small.

An army of rescuers is hard at work trying to reach the entombed miners. There is great excitement at the mouth of the slope. The relatives of the men shut in the mine are gathered about the place, and their lamentations are pitiful.

Booms in Business.

Business is picking up with great rapidity in the cotton and woolen mills in Worcester county. Last September 462 sets of woolen machinery were idle in the county. These when running gave employment to 10,000 operatives, whose monthly wages aggregated $400,000. Now every cotton mill in the county is running, and only 154 sets of woolen machinery are idle. Only about 3,000 hands are now out of work.

Scott & Wheelock's five set mill in Bridge will start up to-morrow. Every woolen mill in the city of Worcester except that of the Harrison Woolen Company, which is in insolvency, is running.

All the mills in Cherry Valley, between Worcester and Leicester, are running full time except Mann Bros.' factory, which is putting in forty hours a week. The big Slater mills at Webster, which employ about 1,000 hands, are now running. The three mills at Athol are all running.

A Fortune Eaten up in Court.

Camden, N. J., Feb. 13.—The case of Henry George against John T. Woodhull in the Camden civil courts was settled to-day, when Lawyer Woodhul paid over about $200 in his possession. Henry George, the plaintiff, is the well-known single tax advocate and the author of the book "Progress and Poverty."

Some years ago George Bowers, an eccentric old resident of Ancora, Camden county, died leaving about $20,000, the greater part of which he willed to Mr. George for dissemination of his book. Relatives contested the will and litigation ate up all the fortune except the money paid to Mr. George to-day.

Bower's widow not being able to obtain even her dower, was obliged to go to the almshouse, where she died of a broken heart some months ago. Mr. George offered to let the widow have a generous amount of the legacy, but the other heirs refused.

London Reds Active.

London, Feb. 13.—The Pall Mall Gazette states this afternoon that a villainous anarchist leaflet, printed in London in French, is being circulated. It announces that its authors threaten to destroy the bourgeois unless their demands are conceded, and implore their comrades to execute justice upon their bourgeois enemies of all ages, and of both sexes. Another leaflet aims against society in England. It is printed in English and urges the desirability of setting fire to London in a hundred places in order to monopolize the attention of the police while the anarchists loot the city.

The Pall Mall Gazette adds that there is no reason why the same atrocities as were perpetrated by foreign anarchists at Chicago should not occur here so long as the British public tolerates anarchists who daily and nightly are preaching wholesale murder.

Many Fatalities.

Guthrie, O. T., February 13.—The worst of the great blizard seems to be over here and business is again resumed. Besides the two families reported frozen at Ponca, one man was frozen stiff. Near Stillwater a man was frozen to death under his house and south of Cleveland, in county Q, a family of three perished. Two Tonakawa Indians are reported to have been found dead in a hut. Near Anadarka three Indian children, who were caught in the storm, perished. There are rumors of many other fatalities, but so far they have not been confirmed. The number of dead cattle will reach the thousands. The temperature did not reach as low as on January 23, but the wind and sleet were so bad that people caught out could make no resistance,

Frightful Tale of Cruelty.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 11.—Andrew Smith, a Polander, told a horrible tale of cruelty before Alderman De Lacy, of the Seventh ward, this city, to-day. Smith has instituted suit against Charles Brown, Anthony Pesco, Frank Partilnmas, Alexander Zernridge and Powell Carpaghe, charging them with seating him naked upon a red hot stove and holding him there, despite his shrieks, of agony, as long as they could endure the odor of the burning flesh Smith exhibits the scars of his burns, which are frightful. The men he accuses have a bad reputation and are suspected of being concerned in the assault on Joseph Mattulas, whose head was split open with an ax. All the accused were arrested to-day and held for court.

Both Lovers Dead.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb 11.—News reached here of a bloody double tragedy at Johns, 20 miles away. Dennis Clements and Will Barge were in love with the same young lady. They met at her home and a quarrel resulted. Barge finally drew a pistol, shot and killed Clements in the presence of the young woman, who appealed piteously for him not to shoot. Barge fled, and later on Deputy Sheriff Chat Holman attempted to arrest Barge, who drew a pistol and said: "I am fixed for you and you can't arrest me." Barge pulled the trigger of his gun, but it did not fire. Holman quickly raised a shotgun and blew Barge's head off.

ALL EYE OPERATIONS SUCCESSFULLY PERFORMED BY H

After having tried five different doctors and a wagon load of different patent medicines, grew worse and worse, and was at last cured by Dr. Salm.

For more than eight years I was troubled with dyspepsia and intestinal indigestion. I suffered untold agonies, only ate enough to keep me alive, and towards the last I could not keep on my feet anymore. During all this time I must have taken a wagon load of different patent medicines and tried five of our different doctors in the county but grew worse and worse. None of them made the diaconis until I went to Dr. Salm at Tyrone. He told me at once what ailed me, and he was correct, for to-day I feel like a new woman. MRS. CARRIE PECHT.

Sandy Ridge, Center Co., Pa.

Grew worse and worse for seven years of a bad case of catarrh, but Dr. Salm cured him after the ver best physicians in in the county had failed.

For more than seven years I had a bad case of catarrh which affected my head throat and chest very much and in a short space of time I lost over twenty pounds in weight, became weaker daily and felt stupid and good for nothing. Was treated by several of our best doctors and took a good deal of patent medicines, but grew worse and worse. Then I heard of Dr. Salm's wonderful cures. I gave him a trial and from the very first month I began to steadily improve and the result to-day is that I have gained what weight I had lost heretofore and feel like enjoying life once more.

CHARLES P. DONIGAN.

Hill and Butler county, Pa.

Cured by Dr. Salm after having suffered for years with stomach, bladder and kidney trouble.

I have been suffering with very severe stomach, bladder and kidney trouble, and on account of that left all broke up. Couldn't follow my daily labors on account of great pain, weakness and headache; but now, after a course of treatment with Dr. Salm, can once more attend to my daily labors with pleasure and consider myself hale and hearty again. E. A. ANKENY.

Indiana, Pa., April 26, 1893.

Ailed for twelve years and though seven different physicians failed, Dr. Salm cured me.

For more than twelve years I suffered fortune with liver, stomach and kidney trouble. Occasionally I had to go to bed for a week at a time and was unable to work for years; but now, after only a few months' treatment with Dr. Salm, I feel so well, as I never did before. I used piles of patent medicines and had seven different physicians but gradually grew worse and worse. However, since I put myself under Dr. Salm's treatment I improved gradually and can now do as good a day's work as anyone. I certainly recommend the Doctor to those suffering from chronic diseases of any kind.

J. A. GRAMLEY, P. O.

Rebersburg, Centre county, Pa.

Deafness cured by Dr. Salm after a great many others had failed.

For quite a time I have been almost totally deaf from catarrh, particularly in my left ear, which seemed dead, and the right one was getting daily. I was very despondent and almost gave up all hope of ever being cured, when I went on around me. Now I am quite a different man and feel happy once more, all this, due to Dr. Salm's skill ful treatment. I have tried three other doctors. No one can imagine the good and joyous I feel since I can hear once more without an effort.

MICHAEL STENGER.

Closure of the tear-duct cured by Dr. Salm.

I have had a good deal of trouble with my eye for the last 5 years, tears running over it almost continually. Dr. Salm called it closure of the tear duct and operated on the same, and I can keep my handkerchief in my pocket instead of wiping tears continually.

MRS. MARTHA CARNU

Indiana, Pa.

Catarrh and ear trouble cured by Dr. Salm.

For more than ten years I have had a bad case of catarrh. My ears gradually became affected to such a degree that the hearing in one ear is almost totally gone and had in the other one became very much alarmed, so I went to Dr. Salm for treatment, and improvement was noticed from the beginning. It's now very seldom that I take a cold and it must be a very bad one that I cannot hear with either ear. I feel well all around and confess myself satisfied with the treatment. FRANK MULLEN

Ebensburg, Pa.

For eighteen years totally blind.—Restored through his wonderful skill gave me sight.

For more than eighteen years I have been totall blind in my right eye, cause by a glass wad striking the same. I was told I could never be made to see again out of the eye, but it was told me that the injury had produced cataract and that he would guarantee me to see. I called on him, and bless my stars that I did so, for to-day, though it is wonderful to relate I can once more see out of the heretofore blind eye, and more than eighteen years' darkness is past, and those who know me will bear witness to the above, and think there is no disease that Dr. Salm's wonderful skill cannot cure.

—Little children seem to have a mania for putting beans, buttons, gravel, etc., up their noses, which has the effect of frightening their poor mothers half out of their senses and increasing the income of the family physician. Holidays.

In answer to a number of requests we publish the following from the report of the superintendent of public instruction in regard to holidays in the public schools:

"In mediaeval times the multiplication of holy days proved a burden to the working classes. The multiplication of legal holidays by acts of the legislature threatened to add a new burden to those already carried by the teachers. The observance of New Year's day, of Washington's birthday, of Good Friday, of Memorial day, of Labor day, of Thanksgiving day, of Christmas day, and of election days, produced frequent breaks in the regular school year, thereby marring the progress of the children, and making the labor of instruction more difficult and more irksome. Relief came in the act of assembly, approved May 31, 1893, which provides, in the fourth section, that all days just named shall be regarded as secular or business days for all purposes not mentioned in this act; and as the schools are not mentioned among the purposes of the act, it virtually repeals the clause in the act of June 25, 1885, which provided for the closing of the schools on legal holidays. It is hoped, however, that the directors will, at least, order the closing of the schools on Thanksgiving day, by reason of its national importance, and on Christmas day, which, of all the days of the year, brings joy to childhood, and turns the thoughts of young and old from secular to sacred things. Patriotism will, without doubt, cause the schools to be closed also on Decoration day and on the Fourth of July, when these days do not fall into the vacation.

"If it should be held that the several holiday acts of the last legislature have no bearing upon the act of June 25, 1885, it will then follow that the new days which were created legal holidays during this year, are not legal holidays for the schools, and that it is illegal for teachers and pupils to engage in the work of ordinary instruction on Saturday. This would jeopardize the payment of the state appropriation to districts in which a teacher, through ignorance of the law, taught on Saturday.

It would embarass the normal schools and colleges which observe their weekly holiday on Monday instead of Saturday. These institutions are so delighted with the change that it would be a hardship to require them to go back to the old arrangement. Moreover, there is a great diversity of opinion in different parts of the state on the observance of holy days like Good Friday. For these reasons the former interpretation, which leaves the determination of school holidays in the hands of directors or controllers (institute week excepted), is much to be preferred from an educational point of view. It is in accordance with the maxim that the school laws are to be interpreted in the interest of the children who are to be educated—a maxim of interpretation that should never be ignored or forgotten."

A Remedy for Small-Pox.

A lady handed us the following for this loathsome disease, and assures us that she has seen it tried in numerous cases, in none of which it failed to cure: "I herewith append a receipe which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure the small-pox though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered cow-pox in England the world hurled an avalanch of fame upon his head, but when the most scientific school of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published this receipe as a panacea for small-pox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. Here it is as it cured small-pox and scarlet fever: Sulphate of zinc, one grain; fox-glove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar, mix with two tabelspoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, smaller dose, according to age.—Altoona Times.

Fire at Frugality.

Fire broke out in a row of tenement houses at Frugality on last Friday afternoon and before it was gotten under control, four houses occupied by A. M. Hopkins, John Burke, H. H. Stoll and James Bigley were consumed. The houses belonged to the Cresson and Clearfield Coal and Coke Company and their loss is estimated at about $3,000, partly covered by insurance. A high wind was blowing at the time the fire started and for a time it looked as if the whole town would be wiped out. A telegram asking for aid was sent to Altoona and the Vigilant engine, hose carriage and 800 feet of hose were loaded on a train and accompanied by thirty-five firemen in a passenger car were sent out at half past five o'clock in the evening to the burning town. At Cresson the fireman received word that the fire was under control and that their assistance would not be needed, when the train carrying them returned to Altoona.

Low Rate Excursions to Washington.

Three special excursions will be run to the national capital from Pittsburg and other points on the Pennsylvania railroad, as mentioned below, at remarkably low rates. The dates selected are February 21st, March 22nd and April 19th. Tickets for these trips will be good on any of the regular trains except the Pennsylvania Limited or on the special train to be run on the schedule herewith, on the days designated, and will admit of a stay of ten days in Washington. Stop-over at Baltimore maybe made in either direction within limit.

These trips are especially appropriate and attractive during the present season, when the most beautiful city in America may be seen at its best. The historic and contemperaneous interest always attaching itself to Washington, and the magnificent architectural sights, will amply repay a visit, and when the extremely low rates are considered no better trip could be devised.

A special train of parlor cars and day coaches will be run, and tickets will be sold as per the following:

	Rate.	Train leaves.
Johnstown	$7.35	10:22 A. M.
Cresson	7.35	11:12 "
Altoona	7.35	12:05 P. M.

Turtles Which Contribute to the World's Food Supply.

Monster Chelonians That Frequent the Ocean Depths and Fresh Water Tortoises Which Are Highly Valued by the Gastronomic.

Forty-two species of tortoises inhabit the United States and adjacent islands, and they are the largest of the reptilian food supply of this country, which is of great aggregate quantity, and represents a value of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Among them, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, are the largest species of turtles that live in the ocean, and are remarkable in many ways. These marine turtles are specially adapted to an aquatic mode of existence. Their bodies have a specific gravity almost exactly equal to that of the water in which they live, so that they are able to sustain themselves at the surface for any length of time without fatigue. They never go ashore except to lay eggs. Their hind feet are used as rudders, while the fore feet, which are much larger than the hind feet, have a motion similar to that of a bird's wings. In fact, all their movements are more those of flying than of swimming.

These giant turtles are found all along the Atlantic coast, but it is only in the Florida waters that they appear in great numbers. One of the most powerful of them is the loggerhead, which attains a weight of sixteen hundred pounds. It is a rapid swimmer and is often seen far from land. Its food consists of crabs, conchs and fishes, and especially on large quantities. The flesh of this tortoise is rather tough and oily, and is strong flavored, so that it is not much sought after by epicures. The material is imitated beautifully in cow's horn, so that only an expert can tell the difference. Combs made from the golden yellow tortoise shell of the Indian seas are much sought by Spanish ladies, fetching from fifteen to twenty dollars apiece.

Another great marine tortoise is the green turtle, famous in soup. In size it comes between the loggerhead and the hawksbill, and sometimes reaches a thousand pounds. It lives mostly in deep water, feeding on plants, especially on one called "turtle grass." This it cuts off near the roots, to procure the most tender and succulent part, which is known in cookery as "calipash," while the flesh attached to the lower shell is called "calipee." The marine turtles are a good many families of edible fresh water tortoises which live in rivers, ponds and marshes. Among these are several species of soft-shelled turtles, which are highly esteemed in the markets, their flesh being said to be even superior to the green turtle. They are taken with hook and line, snapping greedily at any kind of fish. They feed on small fishes, snails and a variety of vegetable matter. Most frequently they are found among the margins of sluggish and shallow streams, wooing sweet repose in the voluptuous and boxom mud-bank. It is said that some of them do much damage in potato fields situated near water courses, where, unlike most turtles, they are very fond of browsing on the stems of the plants.

FRESH FOREIGN FACTS.

The banjo has now a London organ, the Banjo World.

The new Chamberlain is preaching in a French Protestant chapel still with the spirit and aim, he says, of a Catholic reformer.

Fourty thousand francs have already been subscribed in Paris for the colossal memorial, the municipal council contributing 100,000 francs.

In order to promote the interest of yachting the Cercle des Beaux Arts has put the use of its clubhouse at the disposal of the Yacht club of France for the present.

Literary goods sold very cheap at the Coleridge circulating library. The Hazlitt's were sold for a song, and the little Coleridge correspondence, in two volumes, went for a few shillings. The original manuscript of "Liber Amoris" one hundred and sixty pages only, far less than was expected.

Literary Plunderers.

Perhaps every club in New York is plundered of its books, papers, magazines, and even books by favorite members. The offense is usually important, though sometimes intentional. A highly distinguished public man, the conspicuous stamp of the New York club. A man of wealth was expelled from a fashionable club for persistently carrying off a notoriously dull newspaper. Several clubs usually have posted notices that one periodical or another is missing, and the cutting of newspaper files is a common offense in many clubs.

CLIMAX OF A GREAT EMPIRE.

Great Britain Has Nearly Reached the Limit of Her Expansion.

The campaign which is now closing in the country of the Matabele, the strongest native people in South Africa, is evidently to end in confirming the British supremacy in that region hitherto only nominally included in the British empire. There may, says the Cleveland Leader, be a historical interest attached to this event far wider than the business or social changes which it will make possible, but it is hardly possible that the most extensive empire which the world has ever known is at its stage of greatest expansion. The regions in America, Asia, Africa, Oceanica and Europe which are considered to be under the British flag contain over a million and two hundred thousand square miles, or one fourth of the land surface of the globe. Russia and China together do not possess a much larger part of the earth. The British empire has been built up on a system of colonization which has been enormous during the partition of Africa. Now, however, the limit must be about reached. There is comparatively little territory to seize in Africa, which can fall into the grasp of England. On the other hand, the enormous losses must be sustained. Canada will surely come under the stars and stripes. The change is only a matter of time. Australia will as inevitably become independent. The holding of existing possessions is likewise merely a question of years. About eight million square miles of land and lakes and arms of the sea are slowly slipping from under the paws of the British lion. India, too, will go some day, and it is not impossible that more changes there may be in the next few decades are pretty sure, at any rate, to cut down the size of the most prodigious empire, past and present.

HIS FACE WAS HIS FORTUNE.

The Ugliest Man in Missouri Gets Out of Trouble in an Unexpected Manner.

On the southern edge of Phelps county lives Scott Swartzlander, who is considered the ugliest man in Missouri. He is a farmer, and a bachelor, who will be his equal cannot be produced from any quarter. Swartzlander, who is thirty years old, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has white hair, eyes like a chinaman, no eyebrows, a nose of abnormal proportions, a mouth that reaches from cheek bone to cheek bone, and is ornamented at the end with a beautiful comic bulb. He is lank and tall, and there are numerous other imperfections that add to this picture of general and particular ugliness. Swartzlander was married about a year ago, for cutting timber on government lands in Pulaski county, and when his trial came up at Springfield before the United States court the prisoner was promptly arraigned. While the district attorney was reading the indictment the ugliest man in Missouri was unlawfully taken from government lands. You are discharged, Mr. Swartzlander. Go as quickly as you can, and don't forget to take your face with you.

Undoubtedly this decision of the learned and discriminating judge at Springfield, Mo., entitles Scott Swartzlander to the undisputed title: "The Ugliest Man in Missouri."

MISDIRECTED EFFORTS.

The Dutiful Intentions of a Conscientious Boy.

The museum of natural history at South Kensington, England, has lately received the skin of a very handsome emu, the last of a pair of these strange Australian birds which had been kept as pets for more than twenty-five years by a family in Yorkshire. The bird died in the first cold weather after it had been left to the very tender mercies of the boy of the household, who, with the sunshine of his master ha. not "broken him up."
